

This trial took place at a South African forging company. The customer was forging mild steel into the shape of an automotive flange. Initially this customer was looking for a grade of High Performance tool steel which would double his production to approximately 10 000 shots. By overachieving this mark the customer was able to competitively quote on this job while still making a good G.P.

All Heat Treatment was carried out at Bohler Uddeholm Africa.